

Genetic Clinics has a new look and is now available online

Your Genetic Clinics has a new look from this issue and is now available online at www.iamg.in and <http://geneticclinics.iamg.in/>. You can now access and view the full text of all the back issues free of cost and you can also check the table of contents for all the earlier issues. From this issue onwards, readers will be able to access the HTML as well as PDF versions of all the articles and print them for their use. Contributors can see the instructions to authors on the website and even submit their articles online by clicking on 'Article Submission'.

We urge all the readers to update their subscription online (click on 'Subscribe') to continue to receive either the table of contents (with links to free full text) by email or the print version of the Genetic Clinics. This is important to ensure that all the issues reach the subscribers promptly. Subscriptions to both are free of cost at present!

As always you have the option to give your feedback to the editorial team and now you can do it online. Our endeavor is to translate research in the field of medical genetics to patient care, through our readers.

Printed issues of Genetic Clinics and email alerts will be sent only to the subscribers (free) and members of SIAMG
